

ALL IN Baseball ACADEMY

My Bio:

Hello, my name is Scott Rossiter and I grew up in Bayonne, NJ. I was a 4 year starter at St. Peters Prep in Jersey City, NJ and had a 5-1 record in my senior year with 5 shut outs and an ERA of .032. We were known for being a top notch high school athletic program.

I was heavily scouted by the Detroit Tiger's and was getting drafted by them until I fractured my pitching elbow. I went on to pitch at Div I, St. Peter's College.

I also worked out with the NY Met's (although my favorite team is the NY Yankees) trying to rehab my arm. After 6 months, the Met's sent me to their Doctor to be examined before they would make a decision on signing me. Turned out that I needed two surgeries and had to call it a career. Although I lost my opportunity to play for the Tigers, I have never lost my passion for the game of baseball.

I do all the instruction on my own as I am considered to be an expert in all aspects of the Game.

I have trained numerous kids and I currently have students in Triple A with the Washington Nationals, Single A with the Cincinnati Reds, numerous kids in Div I colleges with scholarships as well as kids in top notch community colleges.

My son was also recruited by U. of Maryland, St. John's, Coastal Carolina, UNC-Charlotte and Tiffin University. He has played against elite competition around the country until he separated his knee cap.

I can teach students on an individual basis or in groups. I like using video as I feel it is a very good teaching tool. I also like to start by gauging pitchers on a radar gun and charting their progress as we move along in the process of perfecting mechanics.

I am a student of this great game and teach the latest techniques. My goal is to help each student to become mechanically sound so they can realize their goals and dreams in all facets of the game.

I know what scouts look for and therefore my lessons and clinics are built around that.

I would appreciate the opportunity to teach your son and whomever else you think could benefit from my hard work and experience.

Thank you for taking the time to read my bio and please feel free to email me any questions you may have.

Best regards,

Coach Scott
